Bunnings to introduce temporary purchase limits for high demand products

To ensure as many customers as possible have access to the products they need, Bunnings are introducing a temporary limit for purchases of high demand products.

From today, the following product groups will have a quantity limit per customer per transaction for purchases:

- Maximum four items per customer:
 - Cleaning products
 - Storage products
 - Garden sprayers
 - Household batteries

- Maximum one item per customer:
 - Generators
 - Gas bottles
 - Respirators/ face masks
 - Fuel cans
 - Methylated spirits
 - Turpentine

Bunnings' Managing Director, Mike Schneider, said while the majority of Bunnings products remain available for customers as normal, it is hoped the move will help give more customers in the local community access to the products they need.

"We're seeing increased demand for some products and we want to be as fair as possible for customers. We are working closely with suppliers to get stock into stores to meet customer demand and our suppliers have been a huge support in making this happen. Our store teams are doing an incredible job looking after our customers and working to get stock onto the shelves as it comes in and I'd like to thank them for all their efforts.

We apologise for any inconvenience to customers and for the temporary stock shortages but thank them for their patience," he said.
